ABOUT PELOTAS

HISTORY

The city of Pelotas was founded in 1758 and achieved its emancipation in 1812. During 260 years of history, the Princesa do Sul (Princess of the South), as Pelotas is known, acquired a culturally rich history. The emergence of the "charque" industry - charque being very similar to jerky beef - marked the beginning of the history of the city.

The name Pelotas comes from the rustic boats, made of leather and four cork sticks, which were used by indigenous people in order to get across rivers in the region. The slaves also used this type of boat in the beginning of the era of charqueadas.

Charque was produced in facilities called charqueadas where workers would slaughter the cattle, salt the beef and hang it into strings to dry in the sun. Because of that, it was only possible to produce charque between the months of November and April. The wealth from the owners of charqueadas allowed their children to study abroad, especially in Europe. When the youngsters returned from their studies, they would bring not only the European customs and fashion but also their culture and political thoughts.

The charque industry began to fall due to the abolition of slavery that took place in 1884. Right after this period, the expansion of charque production to other cities in the state of Rio Grande do Sul ended up accelerating the decline of charqueadas in Pelotas.

Pelotas holds one of the richest cultural and architectural heritages of the country. Houses, public buildings, streets, squares and monuments have defined the landscape of the city according to the needs of its community. The cultural heritage is shaped by the historical continuity of a community that recognizes itself and takes on its ideals and values that transcend generations, being a potential for socioeconomic development that allows several actions and enterprises that lead to job creation, income generation, and the stimulation of the local economy.

The city of Pelotas presents a long trajectory of debates related to the preservation of its cultural heritage. Such concepts allow us to have a broader vision of the historical development of the city by recognizing that no culture is more important than others.

HISTORY

Today, Pelotas is the forth most populous city in the state of Rio Grande do Sul preserving its past while aiming for the future. Throughout its history, the city has received many immigrants from 28 different ethnic groups, mostly Portuguese, Spanish, French, Italian, German, and different African countries. As a result of the intensive miscegenation of the inhabitants of Pelotas, the city reflects a rich cultural patrimony. In order to maintain this patrimony alive, the city invests in the preservation of its historical buildings and in events to raise awareness of the importance of cultural preservation.

CULTURE

The traditional sweets of Pelotas started being produced during the charque (jerked beef) cycle, which made possible the development of other activities and the emergence of a local community.

The strong influence of Italian, French, German and Pomeranian colonization also contributed to a rich cuisine, focused on the production of handmade sweets and preserved foods.

In the beginning of the 20th century, the sweets from Pelotas began to be sold throughout the country, whereas before they used to be restricted to the city's wealthy families.

The city has varied cultural events throughout the year, involving music, art, food, literature, and history. Many of those are free and happen on the street or in parks and public places. Examples include the Sofá na Rua, the Piquenique Cultural, the Book Fair, the SESC Music Festival, the Virada Cultural and the Heritage Day.

We also have the traditional Carnival festival in the city and in nearby cities. Groups of friends usually organize to spend a few days commemorating in the "bloquinhos" of Pelotas and in the cities of Jaguarão and São Lourenço do Sul.

PARTIES

The Way is a party aimed at the LGBTQ + public and is located in the center of Pelotas. The party has a ticket that varies from R$ 30 to R$ 40, but it is an open bar environment, with 5 hours of free drink. It has varied styles of music, different Drag Queens performances, and also has theme parties.

Galpão Satolep is located in the Porto district, it is an alternative environment free of prejudices. Usually the parties take place on Fridays and Saturdays and each party has a theme of musical styles. The price of the ticket is usually quite cheap, around R$ 10 and sometimes the entrance is free, so it is a very affordable party.

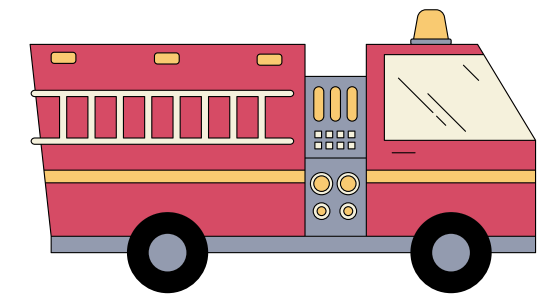

Degrau Rey Club, better known as DS, is a more traditional party that has a very varied audience in terms of age. The most played musical styles are sertanejo and funk. The parties are held four times a week and the entrance price is around 10-20 reais, but you can get a return ticket that you use to enter for free on your next visit to the place.
